

Cadik Danon In Prague

This picture of me was taken in 1948 when I was studying in Prague. I had enrolled in the architectural faculty there. After the war, I enrolled in the gymnasium in Belgrade, to compensate for the time I had lost, and I worked at Jugopetrol at the same time. In two years, I finished four years of gymnasium, graduated and went to study in Prague. I finished my studies in Belgrade and began to work as an architect. I retired as the director of the planning firm Jugoprojekt, a large consortium planning firm.
