

Harry Fink's Nanny Pavla

In this photograph you can see my nanny. She was named Pavla, but unfortunately I don't remember her surname any more, because they always only called her 'young lady'. The photograph was taken in the 1930s somewhere in the vicinity of Prague. Pavla worked for us until I started school, because I didn't attend nursery school. She took care of me and took me on walks and to the park. I liked Pavla very much, I used to go visit her during summer vacation, even when she no longer worked for us.
