

Buka

This is a picture of my mother-in-law's sister Buka. The photo was taken in 1917 in Sofia. She lived in Serbia, married there and had children. She was famous in her native town Pleven as a very neat and elegant woman. She had to cope with a horrible tragedy. During World War II the Germans caught her son, forced him to dig a ditch in the ground and buried him alive.