

Eliezer Menahem

This is my husband's youngest uncle on the maternal side, Eliezer. The photo was taken in 1910 in Sofia. My husband's maternal grandfather was named Menahem and his grandmother Rahel. My husband's maternal grandfather came to Bulgaria from Serbia and he married in the town of Pleven - his wife was from there. They had five sons and two daughters: Mois, Benzion, Haim, Eliezer,

David, Sara and my husband's mother Oro. Menahem was a trader. The family was very intelligent and my husband's grandmother worked at two places so that they could send their sons to study abroad. She worked in a studio for mattresses in the winter and in a dairy in the summer. Eliezer got married in Bulgaria and left for France before the Holocaust. He lived in Paris. I know that he went to Israel from there. I've heard that he was a very cheerful person and he used to enjoy himself a lot when he came from Pleven to Sofia to visit my mother-in-law's family.
