

Jul Levi In Berlin

This photo was taken in a museum hall near the Berlin Wall. To my left was a colonel whose name I don't remember. The brunette in the second row with the white blouse is the soloist of the dancing ensemble. The others are also colleagues of mine. The first from left to right (in the front) is Erich Veinert, the head of the ensemble of the German army. This picture was taken in the 1970s in Germany. At this time I often organized concerts in the Central Home of the People's Army in Sofia (now known as the Central Army Club) with the Military Ensemble.