

Renee And Solon Molho With Their First Child, Mair

This is a picture of me and my husband Solon Molho with our first child, Mair, in 1948. It is during the summer of 1948 when we went on vacation near the mountain of Arsakli. At this time we did not use to go to the sea for the summer, on the contrary, we were seeking the fresh mountain air. This first child was my first joy. The first joy in a long time. He was the first child that was born to our family after the war and this was something very important. We were all very happy about it, me and Victoria, Solon's sister, and my sisters. It was new life coming. A baby came, the first one after the war. For all of us it was a rebirth.
