

Ronald Molnar's Wedding

This is the wedding of my son Ronald in Sydney in 1984. From left to right: my 2nd wife Sandra Molnar, I, Michelle Molnar, Ronald's wife, Ronald, my mother Iren Molnar, my brother Peter Molnar and his wife Claire Molnar. In the front is my other brother John Molnar and his wife Michelle Martin. In 1970 Peter married Jackie Cook, who isn't Jewish. In 1979 their daughter Michelle was born, and in 1981 their daughter Amber. Michelle now lives in Tokyo. She got there so that she attended the Japanese Faculty in Oxford, and when they got their degree, and American company offered a contract for the most talented children. To her too, so she became a broker in Tokyo. Amber also graduated from university and she has an industrial designer degree, but she is unemployed at the moment. She works with him at the restaurant. Neither one of them is married. Jancsi's wife, Michelle, was born in 1955 on Mauritius, and she is a half-bred. She lived off being a model for a long time, she was a beautiful girl. Their daughter Nicole was born in 1975. The marriage of Jancsi and Michelle is a great marriage. Michelle is a very good wife, she is hard-working, nice and honest. She used to work at the shop for a long time. She was a good worker. The shop is doing so well, that she doesn't need to work anymore. Their daughter Nicole didn't finish school, she dropped out of the 7th grade of high school. She married an aboriginal, or they lived together, they had a child, and then the aboriginal abandoned her. She is alone now. This is a problem. That girl is beautiful, and the grandchild is beautiful too. She/he is bad as the devil. My son Ronald graduated from the best high school. Then he got an accountant certificate, but he has never worked as such. He has a watch and jewelry shop. He started the business with Jancsi, but they sold it and separated. Ronald got married, his wife is called Michelle. They have two children: Nicholas was born in 1990, Simon in 1992.
