How religious was your parents' home? How were you raised?

Mrs. Wojdyslawska's parents were atheists. Just like their siblings, they were not religious people. But her Mother's parents, as she remembers, were very religious. Grandfather didn't work, he was supported by wealthy Jews. All his life he studied the Talmud and the Torah. He was a man who lay in bed, with a waist-length beard. Grandmother was at home and she raised the children. She was always very pious. Mrs. Wojdyslawska's parents didn't keep kosher in the ghetto. But grandmother didn't eat anything that wasn't kosher, so she didn't eat much. She used to drink some tea, make herself some bread with something, because she did her own cooking. This malnourishment really exhausted her.
